GUIDE

We believe the mission

- The first Seventh-day Adventist educational institution was founded in 1872 led by Goodloe Bell with the main aim of training students for mission.
- The aim is even more urgent in this generation, closer to the coming of Christ
- NCU encourages and affirms your support for this mission – to transform and to equip for service

We are recognized corporately and internationally

- Corporate Jamaica has acknowledged NCU's approach to education – prioritizing values needed in various industries
- Research in agriculture has been lauded by the Government of Jamaica ● A spirit of innovation led to the successes of the International BMC and Girls in ICT regional challenge
- Relevant research put forward during 2020-2021 about the mental state of Jamaicans during the pandemic was well received
- We produce ministers and professionals who continue to demonstrate zeal and flexibility to keep the church online so the gospel can reach thousands, and who serve with distinction in various disciplines
- This is proof that God's way is best

We act on commitment

- We are making tertiary education a reality to members in JAMU and ATCU through special scholarships this year for new students – planned with your church and community in mind, and other financing options.
- We want your church to be an NCU satellite, where prospective students can find guidance and information
- This is My NCU, our NCU where we equip students to serve God and humanity in the marketplace
